

COMMUNICATION SKILL - Session 6

MAKING EYE CONTACT, FACIAL EXPRESSIONS AND GESTURES

Maintaining Eye Contact

Tips for Making Eye Contact

Establish eye contact at the start. Make eye contact before you start talking to someone

Use the 50/70 rule. Maintain eye contact 50% of the time when speaking and 70% when listening.

Look for 4–5 seconds. Hold eye contact for about four to five seconds at a time, or about as much time as it takes you to register the color of their eyes. When you break eye contact, glance to the side before resuming your gaze.

Look away slowly. When you look away, do it slowly. Looking away too quickly (darting your eyes) can make you appear nervous or shy.

Make a gesture. Break your gaze to make a gesture or to nod, as this appears more natural than looking away because you've grown uncomfortable with the amount of eye contact.

Look near the eyes. If looking someone directly in the eyes is too stressful, instead look at a spot on their nose, mouth, or chin.

Activity

- Step 4 The person starting the game makes eye contact with another player in the circle and by blinking his eyes for number of times whispered in his ear will pass the message.
- Step 5 The player who receives eye contact then makes eye contact with another player, and the cycle continues.
- Step 6 After the last person finishes, the trainer will ask the number they guessed stating from last student to first student.
- Step 7 The person who guessed it wrong is out of the game.
