

COMMUNICATION SKILL - Session 1

Introduction, Something Special about me, My Special interests, My Values.

Communication skills are the abilities people use to give and receive information, such as ideas, feelings, or updates. They involve listening, speaking, observing, and empathizing, and can be used in different ways depending on the situation. For example, communication skills can be used in face-to-face interactions, phone conversations, or digital communication.

Here are some examples of communication skills

Active listening

Involves giving your full attention to what others are saying, asking questions, and providing feedback to show you're engaged. For example, you can maintain eye contact, nod, or paraphrase what others say.

Empathy

The ability to understand and share the emotions of others. For example, you can acknowledge and diffuse anger or frustration, or get support for your ideas by understanding when someone is feeling positive.

Non-verbal communication

Involves sharing information without using spoken or written words, such as through facial expressions, tone of voice, body language, and gestures. Non-verbal cues can indicate whether you care, if you're being truthful, and how well you're listening. When your nonverbal signals match what you're saying, they can increase trust and rapport.

Other communication skills include: Written communication, Oral communication, and Contextual communication.

Some things you can consider when trying to find something unique about yourself

Achievements

Talk about your biggest achievements at home or school or outside or describe achievements that make you a good candidate for a role.

Hobbies

You can mention an interesting hobby, like playing a less common instrument or practicing a weird sport or anything which you do with interest.

Passions

You can talk about your passions, like learning new things or working independently

Activity 1 - Ice breaker

Step 1 - Divide students into two groups

Step 2 - Instruct them to stand in ascending line of their date of birth according to calendar year.

Step 3 - They should use only actions and not speak. Through this way they should ensure they stand in ascending order.

Step 4 - Only one minute time to be given.

Step 5 - Ask the birthday of every child to check if they are standing in correct order.

Step 6 - The group with correct order wins.
